

Silence in Silent Drama Until Titles Are Eliminated

Clara Kimball Young Wants to Produce Film Play Without Words.

TO BE PERFECT PANTOMIME

Would Have Special Music Score Composed That Would Be "Fool Proof."

A number of the progressive motion picture directors have announced an ambition to produce a picture play without titles. The idea is that a photoplay can be produced without using a word of explanation or a single line of dialogue.

This is getting back to the pantomime, with the addition of the unlimited field of the camera. It is not believed that all plays can be so produced or that they would be more interesting than plays that are produced with titles. In some instances it would be almost impossible to get along without titles, and yet the photoplay is distinctly and essentially a pantomime.

The unusually photoplastic production of the Triangle Company, "Silent Love," in which H. B. Warner is starred, is a case in point. The real thrill of this play is gained by a combination of the titles and the picture. Neither would be effective without the other. It might be stated that the titles of this particular play could have been made considerably more effective in working out the climaxes. But they furnish an example.

Clara Kimball Young is one of those who has an ambition to produce an absolutely wordless play. She believes that such a play is not only possible, but that it is better adapted to the film field.

Miss Young's Idea.

"The best example of what a perfect picture should be," Miss Young writes The Times, "is the French pantomime now playing at the Booth Theater, 'Pierrot the Prodigious.' As I watched the performance of this unique creation I was impressed immediately as to the possibilities of the photoplay."

"I left the theater determined not to rest until I found a scenario which can be presented upon the screen as 'Pierrot' is upon the stage, in a consecutive, unbroken story, so clear in its action that there need not be a single caption or title or explanatory note."

"We did not need the three paragraphs which are printed in the program, to understand the meaning of each movement and gesture. This was partly because of the consummate art of the pantomimists, partly because of the charmingly descriptive musical score, and partly because the story is one of the fundamental human emotions—family affection, passion, extravagance, repentance, forgiveness, heroism."

"There is nothing in all this that cannot be done by the photoplay. We have the players, we have music written to accompany the picture, but thus far we have not developed the scenario, the scenario which forms the basis of our work, to such a point of perfection that it tells its story as clearly as drama does not literally fulfill its function—is not really 'silent'—so long as any captions remain."

Ty Cobb—Picture Star!

Ty Cobb has gone into the motion picture!

Dashing merrily from his first position in the hearts of his countrymen as the greatest of baseball players, he is now making his way into the world with his accustomed aplomb, whatever that is! The picture play "Somewhere in Georgia" is now being written by Grantland Rice, who used to do a lot of plain and fancy sports editing for The Times.

The production will have special interest for Washington in that the villain who will try to thwart Cobb as hero-block him off from his plate, as it were—is none other than William Corbett, who did the same sort of thing to Cobb and sundry handsome leading men in stock companies here.

The story is a baseball story, and Cobb will be enabled to show himself on the diamond. It is announced by the Sunbeam Company, under the auspices of which the production has been made, that none of the baseball scenes have been especially posed, but that they were made in a game between the St. Louis Browns and the Detroit Tigers during the regular baseball season.

SAYS DR. COOK FOUND ONE POLE AT LEAST

But Explorer's Erstwhile Press Agent Says It Was Pole of Ingratitude.

When it comes to ingratitude the sort dispensed by Dr. Frederick A. Cook is ample enough to meet the most rigid frigid requirements of any geographic society on earth. If you take the word of Ernest Rost, Dr. Cook's erstwhile press agent, for it.

In fact, Dr. Cook has discovered the north pole of ingratitude, so Mr. Rost sets forth in substance in a suit just filed against the explorer for $2,787.02, alleged to be the unpaid balance of interest of a bill for "atmosphere."

Worked Hard for It.
Newspaper men in Washington became familiar with Mr. Rost last winter. He worked hard to create what he said Dr. Cook contracted to pay him for the creation of "atmosphere" in Washington favorable to Dr. Cook.

In his suit filed in New York by his attorneys he says the atmosphere bill was $1,655, but that he got only $2,800.02 of it.

Rost grew to be a familiar figure around the Capitol. He seemed to have convinced several Western Congressmen, and they prepared various bills designed to reopen the Cook-Pearcy controversy.

Rost sought to give publicity to developments which seemed to show that Crocker Land, put on the map by Percy, did not exist. He tried to show that Rear Admiral Peary was not entitled to the title nor to a pension.

He also promoted publicity adverse to the National Geographic Society, which had been favorable to Percy's claims.

He sought to assail the hydrographic office of the Navy Department for having maps of polar regions with Crocker Land and other discoveries of Percy which, it was claimed, later explorations had discounted.

According to New York dispatches, Rost's attorney, Harry A. Weasel, stated that Rost was engaged to create "atmosphere" for Dr. Cook's claims, at $40 a week, and that about a year ago the payments ceased. But Rost's enthusiasm did not relax, it seems, and now he desires to collect for last season's efforts.

Meanwhile he moralizes on how keener than an Arctic wind is an Arctic explorer's alleged ingratitude.

No Evading That Bill.

DISTRICT ASKED FOR AID IN MILK PROBLEM

Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland Coming Here for Solution of Situation.

Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland are coming to Washington for a solution of their milk problem.

The recommendations of the committee of seven of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association for a municipal or co-operative dairy in Washington are being considered by the trustees appointed to investigate the milk situation, and it is probable that members of the Washington organization will be invited to appear before the commission.

These facts became known following an interview between G. H. Alford, State agent in cooperative extension work for the Department of Agriculture in Maryland, who is a member of the executive committee of the Maryland and Virginia Association.

The interstate commission is meeting today in Philadelphia. Alford called, he said, to learn as much as possible about the Washington situation with the thought that it would help in solving the problem in Pennsylvania.

He was so much impressed with the report of the committee of seven and with the suggestions for centralizing distribution of milk that he asked for a number of copies of the report for distribution among members of the commission.

Mr. Alford seemed particularly interested in the proposal to economize in the methods of distribution rather than advance the price to the consumer.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL IN GREAT DEMAND

Registration in Night Sessions Presages Permanency for Innovation in Education.

That the vocational night school will be developed into a permanent institution is the belief of several of the school officials who last night visited typical schools at the opening of the night school season.

Already the enrollment exceeds expectations, it was stated, except in the citizenship and foreign classes. Because these men and women do not read the newspapers, they are wholly uninformed on the subject of night schools, and wait until the system is explained to them personally.

The salesmanship class at the Thompson School is fully up to expectations. It is probable that two courses in the subject will have to be given. Several applicants want wholesale selling, although retail salesmanship was the only course proposed. Retail selling, in which class many of the merchants in the city are urging their employees to enter, deals with the practice of the customer coming to the salesman. Wholesale selling takes the salesman to the customer.

The teacher class will be taught business arithmetic, given a business vocabulary, and instructed in various business methods. Six have already registered in this class, and those in charge say that as soon as adequate provision can be made the enrollment will be increased.

About 500 students were enrolled in the various classes at the Wilson Normal Community Center School. It was estimated by those taking the registration, although no definite count was made.

After the classes in the community school an entertainment was given to celebrate the opening of the schools. Addresses by Miss Anna M. Goding, principal of the normal school, and Robert L. Havens, supervising principal of the third division, and musical selections including an American-Hawaiian trio completed the program.

Requests for unusual subjects were reported by all principals. Bookkeeping, basket weaving, tailoring, violin lessons, and nature study were sought.

Chicago's Chief of Police Is Indicted

Charles C. Healey Held in $20,000 Bail; Two Others in Conspiracy Charge.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Charles C. Healey, chief of police, has been indicted on two charges. The first indictment accuses him of malfeasance and the second names the chief, William Luthardt, his secretary, and Charles T. Essig, secretary of the sportsmen's club, as conspirators in a plot to nullify the anti-gambling laws.

Chief Healey's bond was fixed at $20,000. The bonds of Luthardt and Essig were fixed at $10,000 each.

Chief Healey is accused of wilful and corrupt omission of his duties as chief of police in permitting the operation of gambling rooms, allowing the sale of liquor without licenses, failing to interfere with the operation of the city's vice and morality laws.

Healey is charged with having allowed the operation of gambling rooms, allowing the sale of liquor without licenses, failing to interfere with the operation of the city's vice and morality laws.

Bridal Flowers Join in Upward Trend of Prices

Lilies-of-the-Valley and Azaleas, So Necessary at Hymen's Altar, Costing More and More Each Day—Of Course, It's the War.

Another body-blow was handed today to Cupid.

Since time immemorial he has laughed at locksmiths.

He has maintained his grin even in the face of the high cost of living; for when has Leander ever thought of the cost of mutton chops when proposing to his Lulu?

But today's development is a real tragedy. Local florists let it be known that the cost of the lily-of-the-valley, the essential element of the bridal bouquet, is going up by leaps and bounds, and that the end is not yet!

Of all the flowers, lilies-of-the-valley and azaleas have gone up. And, of course, it's the war. Lilies-of-the-valley were imported largely from Germany, and azaleas from Belgium. And shipments of both have been reduced to a minimum. In consequence the price of both have gone up—in the case of lilies-of-the-valley from 50 to 100 per cent. Prospects are for still greater advances, so that from now on the groom who buys his bride a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley has got to go way down deep into a well filled purse to pay the bill.

While there is always at this time of the year, with the approach of winter and the cessation of outdoor flowers, an increase in the cost of all cut flowers, the level of prices on the ordinary blossoms has not advanced at all.

"The reason," said William F. Gude, "is easy to see. The price of a barrel of flour is manipulated by persons controlling the supply of wheat. The price of flowers is dictated largely by nature. Anybody can grow flowers. Not on a large scale, perhaps, but in sufficient quantity to affect the price of flowers handled by concerns regulating everything that enters into the cost of running the flower business has gone up. The price of flowers has gone up. We pay more for glass used in our hothouses, more for coal to heat the hothouses, more for fertilizers. Yet you can buy just as many carnations for cents now, as you could five years ago."

But all this, of course, has nothing to do with the lilies of the lilies of the valley, which, Mr. Gude explained, are grown in a section of Germany near Hamburg, and shipped to this country before the war. "We paid more for them under artificial warmth, and bloom in about six weeks time. 'Before the war,' he said, 'we paid four dollars a hundred for them. Now we pay eight.'"

Department of Justice Asks for Light on Grants.

Department of Justice attorneys have presented to the Supreme Court a petition to review the Oregon-California land case, involving the constitutionality of the law passed by Congress last session.

The Oregon and California Railroad Company and other companies holding land under Government grants brought suit in San Francisco, questioning the validity of the law.

Although the companies were unsuccessful in their attack, the Government asked a review, declaring the law in question is preventing work of improvement and of disposition of the land.

The Government's petition also asked that the case be advanced on the calendar for argument.

When John W. Healey, 1318 Tenth street northwest took out his watch to tell colored man the time at Seventh and O streets northwest last night, the man, according to the complaint registered by Healey at Police Headquarters today, suddenly grabbed the timepiece and made off with it.

The watch is a gold hunting case, Elgin movement, inscribed on inside case, "From Mother, 1910." The police have a good description of the thief.

BUILDERS BOOST FOR SPANISH SCHOOL

Invite Washington to Language Kindergarten Launching on Thursday Night.

"Come to the Ninjardin Espanol Thursday evening and hear a talk on Why Learn Spanish?"

This is the gist of an invitation issued today by the Builders and Manufacturers' Exchange, which is launching its Spanish Kindergarten (which is the English for Ninjardin Espanol) upon its third year.

No charge is made to students nominated by exchange members and registered with the secretary, C. E. Welch.

At the meeting on Thursday classes will be organized for regular work on ensuing Thursday each week.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe unimproved by the addition of other ingredients, suggested for centuries, ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This compound has been depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair. "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and glossy again. This is a ready-to-use preparation in a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation, or prevention of disease.

AVOID ALL MEAT IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Uric Acid in meat excites Kidneys and irritates the Bladder.

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder weakness or Kidney-Backache.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying, it is sometimes very painful; this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effective, clean lithia-water drink which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Advt.
